BIG GAS FIELD IN RUSH COUNTY

Authorities Believe 550 Foot Well Indicates Great Possibilities For the Future.

THE SCIENTIFIC EXPLANATION
If Theory is True it Means Big Thing For Manufacturers and Industries Here.

Col. James M. Woods, who with W. H. Ogan is working to bring new industries to Rushville, talked with a number of friends at Indianapolis the other day about the peculiarity of natural gas being plentiful in Rush county at a depth of only about 550 feet. Col. Woods was one of the pioneers in developing the Muncie gas field. He asked the opinion of several of his friends who have had experience in the development of natural gas as to a theory he has. They uniformly agreed with him as to the probability of his theory being correct.

Col. Woods' idea is this: The antediluvian upheaval or upward bulge of the trenton strata extends over an imacates that in this county there will be found, upon further exploration, one of the largest deposits of gas yet found. Nowhere else in the trenton field is gas found abundantly so near the surface. Liquids from the force of gravity, unless pushed upward by other forces, seek the lowest levels. Gas seeks the highest levels. The trenton strata extends over an immense territory. Gas would collect from this territory at the highest point it could reach. Drillings show this point to be Rush county.

With the enterprise of three competing gas companies here and the interest of manufacturers in obtaining again a supply of the best fuel they have ever used, it is probable, he says, that sufficient gas will soon be developed here, not only for residence, but for factory purposes. If this proves to be true, lots in the new factory addition, as well as other property in Rushville will increase rapidly in value. Rushville people have been cautious in conserving their gas, lest the supply should give out as in many formerly very prosperous towns, north of here. But if Col. Woods' theory proves correct, factories which are located here now will get a great advantage here which they do not expect.

CRANK OF MACHINE SEEMS TO BE A FOE

Dr. J. G. Lewis is Nursing Second Injury as Result of Cranking His Automobile.

STRUCK HIM OVER THE EYE

Dr. J. G. Lewis is nursing the second injury from the "hands" of the crank on his machine, and he says that he is going to dodge it the next time it starts at him. While cranking his automobile the other day the crank flew off and struck him just over the left eye, inflicting a painful flesh wound. The swelling was so great that he could scarcely see out of his eye for a time. This is the second accident of the kind he has had, the crank flying off once before and breaking his arm.

Former Representative Sells His Property at Falmouth.

Cary Jackson, former State representative has sold his elevator and residence property at Falmouth to Jacob Gross, the J. M. & I. ticket agent at that place. Mr. Jackson may locate in Rushville.

Mr. Jackson is a man who believes in doing things and doing them right and he will receive a royal welcome here if he comes.

RUSH COUNTY PRODUCT WON

Aileen Wilson Was Victor Over Fast Ones in Free-for-All Pace at Columbus.

WON LAST TWO HEATS OF RACE

Hedgewood Boy Finished Fifth—This Means Much for Local Horse Flesh.

Rush county horse flesh was victor yesterday in the best and most exciting race of the Ohio State fair at Columbus and in which the fastest race mile of the year was made. Aileen Wilson who was born and raised in this county, trained and raced by Dick Wilson and later sold by him was the winner in the free-for-all pace taking the honors from such horses as the Eel, Hedgewood Boy, Citation and Copa De Ora.

Hedgewood Boy 2:02 1/4 a member of the famous full brother and sister who have smashed the world's record to the pole this season finished last in the race. He was driven by the local trainer Dick Wilson and was touted as a possible winner although the Eel was played at the winner by a big margin.

The fact that Aileen Wilson pulled away with the first money means much for Rush county horses. She was thought to be down and out as she has been defeated by the same horses before this season. But yesterday races showed that she was still in the game with plenty left to spare.

The same bunch of horses will meet again this season and the supremacy according to horsemen is by any means determined. Local followers of the turf are figuring out how it all happened and others are looking wise and saying "I told you so."

The heats were all in fast time the first being the best made this year and captured by Copa De Ora. The heats were respectively 2:02; 2:03 1/2 and 2:04 3/4. Aileen Wilson won the last two and Hedgewood Boy finished last in the first two and fourth in the last.

A dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, says of the race which is of local interest:

Copa De Ora's pacing to a season's race record and the overthrow of two pronounced first choices made lively the third afternoon of Grand Circuit racing here. Copa De Ora lost out, however, to Aileen Wilson after pacing the opening heat of the free for all in 2:02 flat.

In this heat Aileen Wilson and Hedgewood Boy led to the half in :59 1/2. The three-quarters post was reached in 1:30. Hedgewood Boy faded clear away in the stretch, while Copa De Ora closed up and out-rushed Aileen Wilson, that won the next two heats in slower time. The Eel was favorite for this race.

You are Invited to the Y. M. C. C. Headquarters

The big banner in front of the Y. M. C. C. headquarters was temporarily taken down last evening because an improvement in it was found practicable. It is expected that it will be replaced today. The headquarters were opened "to stay open." A number of citizens called and discussed the auspicious beginning of the campaign for more factories.

The Y. M. C. C. wants it understood that all citizens of Rushville and farmers and their families from surrounding territory are welcome. No laboring man should stay away because he has on only his working clothes. This is no dress parade affair. Suggestions from every citizen of anything that will help boost Rushville will be welcomed. Everyone should be able to find something which will help the good cause. Farmers and their families are invited to make the club room their headquarters when they come to town. The women and children are welcome. A movement which will make more and steady work for artisans, contractors, carpenters, etc.; make more business for merchants and enable them to collect their bills readily because the people have more money; increases property values and rent all vacant houses at good rentals, is a movement which certainly the members of the Y. M. C. C. say should interest the women as well as the men; for increased flourishing conditions mean more happiness in the homes.

Several manufacturers have signified their willingness to assist in the display of products. The investments of manufacturers will be benefitted in the general increase of good times and, although they do not depend upon local sales of goods for their revenue, they have many other interests allied with the general interests of the community. The Y. M. C. C. is not a "select few" organization, but is composed of several hundred enterprising business people of Rushville. Its movement is one of natural interest to every citizen. The organization wants the co-operation of all the citizens of Rushville and of farmers in surrounding territory, all boosting together.

STOVE AND SUPPER GO DOWN IN HEAP

Foundation Under Summer Kitchen Gives Away While Woman is Preparing Evening Meal.

ONLY LITTLE DAMAGE IS DONE

Were you ever cooking supper when the stove just got tired and fell down?

That's what happened to Mrs. Alvin Clark at her home in North Sexton street last night. Well, maybe the stove didn't get tired but anyway it fell. And other things fell, too. The foundation under the summer kitchen collapsed and so did the hopes for a good supper. It all happened so suddenly that there wasn't any time to call for help and "let things come down easy," so the stove just took a tumble, meat, potatoes and gravy all in a bunch. And Mrs. Clark says she went down in the melee, but she was not injured. There was little damage except to the summer kitchen—and the gravy.

LIGHTNING SETS FIRE TO STACK

Straw Pile Burned on the Farm of Jabez Winship in Noble Township.

RAIN STOPS FURTHER DAMAGE

Lightning set fire to a large straw pile on the farm of Jabez Winship in Noble township last night and it was in ashes when Mr. Winship went to the barn at an early hour this morning to do his chores. The stack was not far from the barn, but the heavy rain prevented any other damage.

CRITICS PRAISE BARITONE HIGHLY

Can Not Say Too Much of Carl Morris of New York, Who Will Give Concert Here.

MUCH IS EXPECTED OF HIM

The Musical America, a publication devoted to the music profession, says of Carl Morris, the former Rushville boy, who will give a concert at the Main Street Christian church Monday evening under the auspices of the Sunday school:

Carl Morris, baritone, a young singer of unusual attainments, was heard Tuesday evening at Mr. Hermann Klein's concert, in the recital hall of the College of the City of New York. His voice is one of great beauty and he brings to his work intelligence, earnestness, and a true artistic temperament. Much may be expected from this promising artist in the future.

The New York World says: Mrs. William R. Foster's musical given yesterday morning in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria was attended by a large and fashionable audience. The baritone soloist was Carl Morris and he found instant favor with the audience. In addition to a voice that is rich and sympathetic he possesses a convincing personality and the intelligence to give each song its proper interpretation.

Weather Man's Prediction For Northern Part of State.

Look out! Cover up your cherished flowers tonight. And you had better put an extra cover on the bed, too. It may frost and the weather man has gone as far as to say it will. But his prediction is for the northern portion of the State. However, it would not be a bad idea to take a few precautions if you have anything outside which you do not want nipped.

Bank's Complaint Against Taylor Warfield and R. E. Wilson.

The Rushville National Bank has filed a supplementary complaint in its case against R. E. Wilson and Taylor Warfield. The additional paragraphs ask that the deeds conveying the property of these two men to other individuals be set aside. The property of Mr. Warfield was transferred to Mr. and Mrs. Will Bowen, and that of Mr. Wilson to Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Case early this week.

SEE HOPE FOR I. & C. EXTENSION

Connorsville People Are Encouraged After Visit of President Henry and Other Officials.

MOVE ON TO HAMILTON SOON

Is Statement Mr. Henry Made Yesterday According to the Connorsville News.

President Henry, Will Frazee and J. W. Moore, officials of the I. & C. Traction company, were in this city, yesterday says the Connorsville Examiner. They came in response to a request of the city council to confer regarding the tapping of the company's sewer in order to drain the pond where a boy was recently drowned, and also to carry other surplus water away from that part of the city. Considerable tiling will be necessary and a part of it will benefit the traction company. Mr. Henry cheerfully agreed to pay his company's share of the expense and told the councilman to have the work done and file a bill for the company's share.

On the other side of the company's line the city is desirous of acquiring some land from the Wright estate in order to widen Tenth street. The company has its full right-of-way already along the street, but Mr. Henry expressed a willingness to assist in the purchase of the necessary ground. "We want to connect with Hamilton, soon," Mr. Henry remarked, and plainly intimated that when that was done double tracks would be put in and that its full share of the street as it now is would necessarily be occupied.

From Mr. Henry's manner, and that of the other officials, and their readiness to assist in necessary improvements, it was gathered that they were in high hope of soon having their line completed and built throughout as Mr. Henry had first planned it, with double tracks and everything in first class shape.

WHEN BILL CAME MARCHING HOME

Sam Blythe Gives Rushville Men Much Attention in the Saturday Evening Post.

MORE WORK BY T. J. GERAGHTY

W. J. Henley, J. K. Gowdy and the Shadow of Jim Adams Are Mentioned in Story.

Samuel G. Blythe, the Who's Who man of the Saturday Evening Post, gives his attention to Rushville this week. J. K. Gowdy and W. J. Henley are the central figures in the two column story which really was written by Tom J. Geraghty. Mr. Blythe "played" the story with a few variations and saw fit to recognize Mr. Geraghty by slipping in his name. Incidentally Mr. Blythe is a great admirer of Mr. Geraghty's work. The shadow of Jim Adams, the "royal chef" is seen in the article although his name is not mentioned. The Saturday Evening Post handles the Rushville notables after this fashion:

Uncle John K. Gowdy came back to Rushville from Paris economically bestowed in a day coach; but, then, John K. always was prudent except that one time when he let the French barber go as far as he liked, and the French barber cut off the paint-brush whiskers that had been John K's and Indiana's pride during so many political campaigns, and had astonished the boulevards, although, it may be said, there are shown on the boulevards from time to time some fantastic facial foliage. However, John K. lost his because he loosened up to that barber, but that isn't the point.

The point is that he came back home to Rushville, after being Consul-General at Paris until an unfeeling and non-obligated President wouldn't let him be Consul-General at Paris any longer, which was a rude shock to John K., for he thought he was a victor to whom belonged all the Parisian spoils for a few years longer—he came back home in a day coach. Most of the way from the borders of Rush county the day coach ran alongside farms owned by John K. Taking it by and large, a good many other Rushville folks coming back home have walked in, after venturing out in the world, and some have written home for money. Also quite a smattering of Rushvillians, who want to celebrate old-home week, or month, have blown in wrapped in red blankets with "Minnie K" or "Eye-Kay-Bee" or some other horse name on them—the blankets; for a lot of light harness horses go out every year from Rushville to campaign at the fairs, and it is to the credit of Rushville campaigners that they rarely refuse to let a Rushvillian, with a yearning for home, crawl into a blanket and go back on the stock car.

However, this is beside the mark, which is what the chaps in the blankets are, too—ha! ha!—and not to be too hippocarnianous about it, I ask this question:

Q. Did Bill Henley come back to Rushville in any of the styles or conveyances above and hereinbefore mentioned?

A. He did not.

Q. Well, then, Mistuh Johnsing, how did Bill Henley come home?

A. He came home, Brother Bones, in his own pet, private car, with a party of friends as guests, with ice boxes bulging like the veteran firing line at a schutzenfest, with his personal cook fixing up a few sweetbreads and muhsrooms under glass and a few other little kickshaws like that with his proprietary porter shining the brass, and with enough electric lights burning to make it

DREAD REPORTS SWELL LOSSES

Gulf Storm Claimed Probably Three Score Victims.

DETAILS SLOWLY COMING IN

With Fifty-Six Dead and Rumors of Many That May Yet Be Added to This List, the Magnitude of the Gulf Storm Disaster Grows With Each Hour—Property Losses Also Swell as Communication Is Re-Established and the Aggregate Will Foot Well Up Into the Millions.

New Orleans, Sept. 23.—New Orleans and the surrounding territory is gradually recovering from the first effects of the tropical hurricane, which, starting Sunday, continued throughout Monday and Monday night. Fifty-six lives are now positively known to have been lost and fifty-five others are reported to have perished in lower Terrebonne parish, but as yet this report has not been authenticated. Following is the death list: Terrebonne parish, Louisiana: Definite, 29; reported, 50; New Orleans, definite, 5; Frenier, La., definite, 4; Desair, La., definite, 3; Jackson, Miss., definite, 2; Baton Rouge, La., definite, 1; Mandeville, La., definite, 1; Bay St. Louis, Miss., definite, 1; Donaldsonville, La., definite, 1; Gramercy, La., definite, 1; Grand Point, La., reported, 4; Barataria, La., reported, 1; Pass Manchac, definite, 8; total definite, 56; reported, 55.

The property loss is far heavier than was first believed, and instead of running into the hundreds of thousands, will extend well into the millions by the time the final details are tallied. Miles of territory have been laid waste and crops have been practically ruined.

New Orleans is still badly crippled in the way of railroad facilities and telephone and telegraph communication with the outside world. Both the Illinois Central and the Louisville & Nashville roads have suffered heavy losses, miles of track having been washed away. Trains are being detained. It will be several weeks before the Louisville & Nashville will be running trains over its own tracks. The other railroads are moving trains on schedule time, under caution orders.

It is the territory surrounding New Orleans, especially lower Terrebonne parish, which now commands the attention of relief parties, and from where the least bit of news is seized upon by the anxious people who have friends or relatives in the storm-visited area. Fishermen are heavy sufferers. Shipping of all kinds in the bayou inlets was totally destroyed. Storehouses, sugar mills and dwellings of every character at Houma and other villages suffered heavily, and scarcely a structure was untouched by the hurricane.

The damage at Grand Island, Cheniere Caminada, was very heavy, but no lives were lost. The crops of these islands were totally destroyed, as the water swept across them two or three feet deep, washing them away, and the orange groves were whipped clean of fruit and foliage alike, hundreds of them being uprooted.

The first news from these islands was received when the mail steamer Grand Isle, commanded by Captain Mike Sweeney, reached this city. It was feared before the arrival of the boat that hundreds had lost their lives. In the tropical storm of 1893 no less than 1,500 people were drowned on Cheniere Caminada.

Additional news of the havoc of the storm along the east gulf coast received indicate that the damage was even heavier than at first reported. A number of places are yet to be heard from, but it is not thought probable that any more loss of life will be reported.

The long railroad bridge at Bay St. Louis is a complete wreck, and it will be weeks before it is repaired. It will be several weeks before the details of the storm are cleared up and before any accurate estimate of the property damage throughout the territory adjacent to New Orleans can be given.

SOME WILD SHOOTING

It isn't Safe to Be a Second to an Italian Duel.

Naples, Sept. 28.—A duel between Torre Pazzo, a member of an aristocratic Italian family, and Aniello Nicola, a money lender, proved that it is for safer to be a duelist than a second, for the two duellists exchanged forty shots at twenty-five paces, escaping themselves absolutely unscathed, while all four of the seconds received pistol wounds, one of them dying.

Lew Wallace Statue Completed.

Washington, Sept. 23.—The statue of General Lew Wallace, which is to be placed in statuary hall in the national capitol next winter, has been completed and placed on exhibition in Paris. It will be shipped to this city some time in November.

RECLAMATION OF A DESERT

President Presides at Opening of Gunnison Tunnel.

BIGGEST IRRIGATION PROJECT

Magnificent Engineering Feat That Will Open to Settlement Hundreds of Thousands of Acres of Now Arid Lands Found Its Culmination When President Taft Formally Opened the Great Tunnel Through Which the Irrigating Flood Will Flow—Trip Through the Mountains Full of Interesting Incidents.

Montrose, Col., Sept. 23.—The formal opening of the Gunnison tunnel, the greatest irrigation project the government has ever undertaken, was presided over by President Taft this afternoon in the presence of a great and enthusiastic crowd. From here the president will return to Grand Junction, whence he will resume his westward journey, expecting to arrive at Salt Lake City tomorrow afternoon, where he will remain until Sunday afternoon.

President Taft last night crossed the continental divide and today found himself west of the Rocky mountains. All day yesterday the president traveled with the panorama of the white-capped peaks of the Rockies in view, and at one time the train ran for a mile or more through fields of snow. Last night at Tennessee Pass the climb to the top of the divide carried the president to an altitude of 10,240 feet.

For the first time the president traveled through the grand canyon of the Arkansas, where at one place the half-mile deep canyon is so narrow that there is not room for the track and the river and the former has to be carried over the rushing waters by means of a hanging bridge, suspended by cables embedded in the rocky walls of the chasm. The eleven-mile ride through the canyon was made by moonlight, the president's train having left here at 6:40 p. m., and reaching the hanging bridge two hours later.

The president did not feel the altitude, and at the end of his first week of "one night stands" he is in splendid health despite the efforts of the hospitable west and its elaborate and never-ending breakfasts, luncheons and dinners. Mr. Taft's voice also is in the best of condition. There was a little huskiness for a time, but it has disappeared.

Mr. Taft announced today that he will not make his speech upon the subject of conservation of natural resources—the topic of supreme interest in the country through which he will pass during the next two weeks—until he reaches Spokane on Sept. 28. It was at Spokane that the controversy between Mr. Ballinger and Chief Forester Pinchot arose, and Mr. Taft regards it as probably the best place to discuss the issue. In the brief references he has made in his speeches so far, Mr. Taft has declared that reclamation work must go on, but that it must be done in conformity with the law and that no project will be undertaken until the money for the work is on hand.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE

Causes a Loss of More Than $100,000 at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept. 23.—Fire that swept almost an entire city square last night destroyed the kitchen cabinet manufacturing plant of G. P. McDougall & Son, left eight homes, one grocery and a garage in ashes and damaged four other south side homes. The fire was one of the most spectacular the city has experienced in years. The total estimated loss was $122,025, of which the McDougall factory suffered $100,000.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help, Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—It pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, paper-bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs & Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed, as the best of remedies when required are to assist nature, and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally. To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine.

ley, Buchanan county, Virginia, an entire family of six persons was murdered and the bodies of all but one of the victims were burned with their home. The motive evidently was robbery, as the owner of the house, an aged woman known as "Aunt Betty" Justis, was generally supposed to keep a large sum of money about the place.

Mrs. Justis, her son-in-law, George Meadows, his wife, and their three children, were the victims. Meadows's body, badly mutilated, was found lying in the yard of his destroyed home. Two bullet holes through the body and a wound in the neck, gave the discoverers their first evidence of the extent of the tragedy.

A search of the ruins of the house disclosed the charred bones of the two women and the three children, each body bearing evidences of murder. Another daughter of Mrs. Justis told the police that her mother had a large sum of money buried under the sill of the house, and they succeeded in digging up $950 in gold and silver. The murderers are supposed to have secured the $600 which "Aunt Betty" always carried on her person.

Employees Reject Compromise.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 23.—Shop employees of the Wabash Railroad company have rejected a proposal of a compromise looking toward a settlement of demands made of the company, and unless further consideration is given their ultimatum a general strike affecting all shops of the Wabash system is threatened.

Incendiarism at Cynthiana.

Owensville, Ind., Sept. 23.—Fire of incendiary origin destroyed three business houses in Cynthiana. By hard work a bucket brigade saved nearby dwellings from the flames. The buildings burned were: The drug store of J. B. Stevens, the grocery store of Traft & Wilkinson, and the barber shop of Carl Montgomery.

There is nothing better we know of for all kinds of troubles than Pineules. These pills are really excellent in cases of weak back and backache, pains in the neck of the bladder, rheumatic pain and kindred ailments, due to weakened, disordered kidneys. Sold at Lytle's drug store.

No More Gray Hair.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulpher. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Our Confidence in Mauzy & Denning

Of 40,000 merchants in the United States we deal with but 1,000.

Of countless opportunities to increase the sale of Wooltex Coats, Suits, Skirts, and Dresses for well-gowned women, we select but few.

For the merchant who represents Wooltex garments must offer his public a store service such as few merchants are prepared to offer.

He must have as high a standard in the conduct of his business as we have in the selection of styles and materials for Wooltex garments, and in the employing of workmen to make these garments.

So in Rushville we have chosen Mauzy & Denning.

It is an affiliation between the best manufacturers in the line and the most progressive store in Rushville, which profits not only Mauzy & Denning and us, but you.

So from now on you will find that Mauzy & Denning is the home of

Coats · Suits · Skirts · Dresses

For Well Dressed Women

We choose our representatives with as much care as many business men use in choosing their partners.

The reason is that we spend more to make Wooltex supreme in style, in workmanship, in material, in fit, than any other maker of women's clothes.

Where other makers copy fashion plates we spend $50,000 simply for style. And from the designs to the finished garment we offer extra value without extra price.

At Mauzy & Denning you will now find a large selection of Wooltex styles. Please call and inspect these—the best styles of the season for American women of refinement and good taste.

look like a Gussie Gumdrops sign over a New York theater.

It was great for the natives, and the I-Knew-Him-When Club turned out in a body and greeted him at the station, headed by the What-Do-You-Know-About-That Band playing the Don't-You-Remember quickstep. You see, it wasn't over ten years before that Henley had been a lawyer in Rushville who had a little bunch of ready money once a year when he got a dividend on a small collection of natural gas stock he garnered as a fee one time when the natural gas business wasn't much. When he lighted in Rushville on this historic occasion he was president of the Chicago & Illinois Southern Railroad, and director of the American Trust Company of Chicago. He had, in that ten years, jumped from a directorship in the Rushville Gas company and the presidency of the Flatrock Fishing club of Rushville, to the top of the company that handles every railroad car that goes in or out of Chicago on the belt. Do you wonder the I-Knew-Him-When club was there? Wouldn't have missed it for the world.

Bill came down to attend a dance at the Social club. He had his ear switched off near the elevator and the automobiles took the whole party up to the club where they danced to the wee, sma' hours, as Tom Geraghty wouldn't say, although esteemed contemporary might. The reason the I-Told-You-So club didn't participate was because there wasn't a person in all the six thousand of Rushville who had nerve enough to whisper the club's name and motto. They never did tell anybody so. No one dreamed it, let alone saying it, and the last thing they did say was that Bill Henley was going quite a clip and would probably land in the poor house.

Bill always astonished the Rushville folks. He kept them on a perpetual squawk. When he couldn't afford to smoke a pipe he got the best two-for-a-quarter cigars from the drug store had, while the local bunch who could buy and sell him thought they were going some when they invested in a five-cent torch on Saturday nights. He never wrote letters. He sent telegrams. His wire bill was more than his grocery bill. He wore the best clothes in the town, and he always met—usually first all the big people who came to town.

He was a good looking young chap, and is just as good looking now as he was then, and a hard student. After he was admitted to the bar it was conceded he had more law in his head than most of his competitors had in their libraries. He plugged along with the village wiseacres holding court on him every day, and predicting smash, until a deadlock convention happened. Bill introduced himself as a solution for the deadlock, and they took him, and nominated him for judge of the appellate court. He didn't have to make a campaign, for his party had a big majority in the district, and presently he was Judge Henley and was getting six thousand a year.

Well, six thousand dollars a year is some money—quite a tidy bit of change—and the Judge expanded to it without a quiver. After a time he was offered the position of general consul and director for the Chicago & Southern Illinois crowd, who were then buying several million dollars in property for their belt-line improvement. He had a good reputation as a judge and a lawyer, and the Chicago go people wanted to use his legal ability.

Henley jumped at the chance. He signed his acceptance and sent in his resignation as judge with the same penful of ink. All Rushville rose up and predicted ruin.

"Plumb dotty!" they said. "Crazy as a loon. Idea of quitin' a judgeship that pays six thousand dollars a year and has quite a spell to run."

"But," protested one of his friends, "Bill is going to get twelve thousand dollars a year."

"He dunno what he does want. Fust off, he won't have nothin'! How does he know a firm kin pay him that much money? He ain't worth it, to begin on—no man hain't—and 'sides, I'd rather have the State of Indiana back of me when it comes to payin' big salaries."

Within a year Bill was president of the company and a director in the Mutual Savings bank. When that company was consolidated with the American Trust company Judge Henley was taken over as a director.

In the old days there was a little spot on the banks of Flatrock Creek where Henley used to spend a few weeks each summer, and he never forgot it. Each year, since he went to Chicago, he has gone back to camp there, although he has been able to go to any other place he fancied. There were occasions when the provisions for the camp were secured on time, and the grocers took their pay out in law afterwards, but they got good law, so there was no harm done, either way. Last summer, after he was president of the road, Henley sent word to the old crowd to get together. His wife and daughter had gone to Europe, but he wanted to get back to Flatrock Creek.

He came down in the private car, with a few things for the camp along, and the first person he asked for was the old cook, a street and county-fair sausage vender, who has a knack of cooking over a wood fire. Henley brought a few other cooks with him, but he installed the sausage man as head chef, and made the other cooks take orders from him. After they had been in camp two days, Henley's secretary came hustling into camp in an automobile, with some papers to sign, and in a hurry to catch the next train back.

He found Bill in the cook tent, seated on a wooden box, absorbed in playing seven-up with the head chef on an oil-cloth covered table.

Bill was back home then, for fair.

Welcome You Polite and Proper Janitor!

Story in New York Herald by Tom J. Geraghty

Welcome, yes, thrice welcome, the proposed innovation of the new Italian evening industrial school, that promises to make of a coming crop of janitors real human beings. This new feature will be added to the curriculum at once and all flat men and cliff dwellers rejoice! In the branch will be taught all the gentler arts of the janitoring. Can you imagine, on a cold and genuinely polar morning, a conversation after this fashion?

"Good morning, good Pedro, I may be mistaken, but really, it seems a trifle cold in the apartment."

"Ah! Very good sir, I shall attend to that at once. I thank you most sincerely for calling my attention to the matter."

Not only will the new type of janitor be coached to be as polite as a dancing master, but all the practical things that go hand in hand with his august position will be taught him. The course includes instructions in plumbing, gas fitting, the care of engines and boilers, sanitation of flats, repair of elevators and the scientific disposition of garbage and debris. In fact, when the new, finished janitor comes forth with his sheepskin, he promises to be nearer heaven born than anything civilization has seen since it quit the adobe and one story hut dwelling.

Contributions and endowments for a more general school will undoubtedly follow in event this new type of humanity toes anywhere near the mark chalked off. The proposed schooling of young men for twentieth century janitors is the first thing of this nature ever launched in America. The output cannot be too bountiful, and it is dollars to doughnuts the enormous number of present sufferers will make a loud and riotous bid for the graduates' service. In keeping with the sentiment of the course the new janitors should be graduated, attired in clothes of immaculate white and carrying an olive branch, with the modest demeanor of a sweet girl graduate.

This is only one of the many new features which will be introduced in consequence of the removal of the Italian Industrial School from its present inadequate quarters, at No. 156 Leonard street, to the large building known as the Five Points. This property was acquired last spring by merging the work of the House of Industry with that of the Children's Aid Society. In the remodeling and merged schools will be taught electrical work, plumbing, sign painting and typesetting. An added branch in the Worth street establishment will be the coaching of office boys, a similar schooling proving popular and practical last winter in the Sixth street evening school. For girls a course in typewriting and stenography in Italian will be introduced in addition to the industrial training in the use of power machinery in dressmaking and embroidery work.

According to M. P. Adams, the new head of the society's trade school, an employment bureau will be established to assist all graduates toward positions. The social features are to be particularly attractive. There will be a gymnasium, pool room, card and reading rooms and a large dancing hall for the girls and boys. In the assembly room, which will accommodate five hundred persons, amateur theatricals, concerts of Italian music and popular lectures will be given. The social center work will be carried on under the direction of C. A. Prosser, the society's new superintendent of schools; Mr. Holton, superintendent of the day schools, and Mr. Adams. Last year the fifteen day school accommodated 12,639 pupils and that number is expected to be materially increased this year.

While one sees little or no evidence of race suicide among east side Italians, still the management insists on introducing an object lesson in good taste and economy by furnishing a three room model flat at a cost of less than $100.

Meat Prices are Expected to Rise

There is a probability that ere long Rushville housewives will be confronted by a rise in the price of flesh food stuffs, and they will stare at their meat market man with incredulity and ask a burden of questions as to the ways and wherefores of the matter. The chances are they will call the butcher a pirate and a few more emphatic terms indicative of their mood, and the man with the white apron will have a warm time before he can satisfy them that he is not altogether to blame. As is always the case, his explanation of the cause of the rise in price will probably not be entirely convincing, so a few more converts will be started on the road toward vegetarianism.

While there may, or may not, be any appreciable change in the price of meats, still it is safe to say that a rise is probable, as is indicative by the condition of the Western cattle market, which rules prices all over the country. Experts there say there has been a large falling off in the receipts of cattle for some time and the coolness unusual for this season of the year has caused an increased consumption of meat. In consequence, the refrigerators of the packers are experiencing a shortage, and they have applied the appetite restrainer—a rise in prices—in order that they may restock their coolers. Such is the condition in the middle west, but whether or not it will have any effect locally is now a matter of conjecture.

Local men believe, however, that the market here will not be greatly affected. The market will experience a little fluctuation before real winter sets in, by which time it will have doubtless taken on an upward look. With the passing of the pasture season the market will take a tumble, because stockmen will dispose of their holdings rather than keep them on a grain food. With the exhaustion of this influx will come the rise, and it will naturally be maintained until the receipts are again full. Cattle are not very plentiful in this section and butchers are largely dependent upon the west for stock.

Examinations For Census Positions

A civil service examination has been announced for this State, for October 23, to obtain eligibles for the additional force for the next government census. The approximate number of additional appointments to be made in the census bureau during the three-year census period, which ends June 30, 1912, is three thousand. The work required of these employees will be chiefly of four classes—the operation of card-punching and card-tabulating machines, the operation of typewriters, adding machines, or combined typewriter adding machines; manuscript tabulation and other clerical work; subclerical work, such as that of messengers, messenger boys, watchmen and laborers. Applications for the position of enumerator, supervisor's clerk, or interpreter should be addressed to the supervisor of the district in which the applicant seeks employment. Examinations for the appointment of special agents will be announced later.

The examination to be held October 23d will embrace the following subjects: Spelling, arithmetic, letter writing, penmanship and copying from plain copy. Additional information in regard to the examination and the necessary application blanks may be had of H. K. Milhouse, secretary of the civil service examiners, with headquarters on the fourth floor of the Indianapolis federal building. Examinations will be held on October 23d at Bloomington, Evansville, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Lafayette, New Albany, Terre Haute and Valparaiso.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Hamilton of Decatur county was celebrated Wednesday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Meek, near the village of Kingston. Jabez Smith and John M. Stevens of this city were present and enjoyed themselves to the full of their capacity. They express themselves as delighted with the social features of the event and the meeting of old friends and the feast, which they declare was fit for the gods. Mr. and Mrs. Meek are splendid entertainers. Mr. Smith was at the wedding fifty years ago and there were three others, Robert A. Hamilton, Chester Hamilton and William M. McCoy. In all fifty-eight persons sat down to the two long tables, which were groaning with the best the land affords for the inner man. Gussie McCoy was there, looking fine and desired to be remembered to Rushville friends. She is making her home with her uncle, Robert A. Hamilton.

LUCKY FISHERMAN

Tony Stangel Seins For Minnows and Brings Up Riches.

Hutsonville, Ill., Sept. 23.—Probably the largest haul from the Wabash river was not made by a pearl hunter, but was made by Tony Stangel, who was seining for minnows. He pulled in a black purse, and on examining it found that it contained $3,200. The money was in gold and paper and the purse was so water tight that the money had been preserved, although it had apparently been in the river bed for several years.

RULE OF THE ROAD IN THE AIR

Formulated at International Meet of Aviators at Rheims.

Questions concerning "the right of way" in the air having arisen, the committee in charge of the recent international aeroplane meet at Rheims, France, formulated rules for the guidance of fliers.

The main rule, which provides that the fast aeroplane must make way for the slower, was made practical by Glenn H. Curtiss, the American representative, on Aug. 18, when the aviator, to avoid a collision with a monoplane driven by Dumasnet, skillfully glided upward and over the French pilot.

The rules were as follows:

"A fast aeroplane must get out of the way of a slower one. In avoiding another aeroplane the pilot must steer to the starboard. The risk of collision will be decided by the aspect of the oncoming aeroplane. Unless it is seen to change its face the pilot must put his helm over. An aeroplane overtaking another machine must be steered to starboard, but never pass beneath the other aeroplane. The passing machine must keep at X height above the machine that is being passed (X to be determined later) and will not be permitted to drop to the level of the route that is being taken by the aeroplane in the rear except when it has left the other behind X times its own length (X to be decided later). When the paths of the two aeroplanes are about to intersect the pilot on the starboard must give way. The aeroplane passing another machine on the port has the right of way unless there is imminent danger of collision.

"At night each aeroplane must show lights. A white light must be visible from any point of view. A green light must be visible from ahead and from the left a red light from ahead and from the right. A yellow light (postulated by the vertical dimensions) must be visible from everywhere but below and will be carried on the highest part of the machine. The white light may be carried on the lower part and may be used as a searchlight to illuminate the ground. A machine must not change its altitude after approaching within a certain level. Machines may pass one another only at fixed altitudes and always at a distance of 150 feet. They are exempt from this rule only when one is ninety feet above the other.

"The faster type of craft must make way for slower craft. Aeroplanes in flight will avoid aeroplanes on the ground. Flying aeroplanes must yield the right of way to airships. Spherical balloons always have the right of way.

"Airships will observe the rules for passage laid down for aeroplanes and must display the same lights. The airship's relation to the aeroplane is somewhat that of a sailing vessel to that of a steamer. If an airship shows four lights it is coming right at you. If it shows three it is approaching in an oblique direction. If two lights are shown it is leaving you. If only one is seen it is not at your level."

"U" IS THE SHORTEST.

Island Off the Coast of Korea Bears the Littlest Name.

The new list of names adopted by the United States geographic board contains the shortest geographical name on record, it being U, which is an island east of Quelpart island, on the southern coast of Korea. It used to be "in the olden days" that the river Po, in Italy, had the distinction of having the shortest geographical name on record, but it will be seen that U goes it one better.

AMUSEMENTS

"A Royal Outcast" is the film to be shown at the Star-Grand tonight. The picture is one told in the pretty environment of mythical Arcadia. The story is one dealing with the intrigues, common about the throne of any king. Earl Robertson will sing the airship song, "Floating Along."

"A Burglar's New Trick" and "Lucky Accident" are the pictures which the Vaudet have to offer tonight. The first subject is comic and said to be very entertaining. The second is a dramatic picture with thrilling episodes. Miss Wrennick will sing "My Own United States."

The management of the Palace offers tonight one of the best programs of the week in the film, "The Conspiracy." It is a dramatic subject of unusual interest with a well developed plot. The reproduction is said to be extra good. Miss Iva Brown will sing a new song.

close together and I have felt bound to do what I could to—

"Don't be afraid to say it—make my path easier."

"Something like that, though there's been little real doing. What this situation in which Sinclair is now placed may still mean to you I do not know, but I would not add a straw to the weight of your troubles. I came to-night to ask a plain question. If he doesn't leave the country I have got to meet him. You know what, in all human probability, that will mean. From such a meeting only one of us can come back. Which shall it be?"

"I'm afraid I don't understand you—do you ask me this question? How can I know which it shall be? What is it you mean?"

"I mean I will not take his life in a fight—if it comes to that—if you would rather he should come back."

A sob almost refused an answer to him. "How can you ask me so terrible a question?"

"It is a question that means a good deal to me, of course, and I don't know just what it means to you; that is the point I am up against. I may have no choice in the matter, but I must decide what to try to do if I have one. Am I to remember first that he is your husband?"

There was a silence. "What shall I say—what can I say? God help me, how am I to answer a question like that?"

"How am I to answer it?"

Her voice was low and pitiful when her answer came: "You must do your duty."

"What is my duty, then? To serve the paper that has been given to me, I know—but not necessarily to defend my life at the price of his. The play of a chance lies in deciding that; I can keep the chance or give it away; that is for you to say. Or take the question of duty again. You are alone and your friends are few. Haven't I any duty toward you, perhaps? I don't know a woman's heart. I used to think I did, but I don't. My duty to this company that I work for is only the duty of a servant. If I go, another takes my place; it means nothing except taking one name off the pay roll and putting another on. Whatever he may have done, this man is your husband; if his death would cause you a pang, it shall not be laid at my door. We ought to understand each other on that point fairly before I start to-night."

"Can you ask me whether you ought not to take every means to defend your own life? or whether any consideration ought to come before that? I think not. I should be a wicked woman if I were to wish evil to him, wretched as he has made me. I am a wretched woman, whichever way I turn. But I should be less than human if I could say that to me your death would not be a cruel, cruel blow."

There was a moment of silence. "Dickie understood you to say that you were in doubt as to whether you ought to go away with him when he asked you to go. That is why I was unsettled in my mind."

"The only reason why I doubted was that I thought by going I might save better lives than mine. I could willingly give up my life to do that. But to stain it by going back to such a man—God help me!"

"I think I understand. If the unfortunate should happen before I come back I hope only this: That you will not hate me because I am the man on whom the responsibility has fallen. I haven't sought it. And if I should not come back at all, it is only—good-by."

He saw her clasp her hands convulsively. "I will not say it! I will pray on my knees that you do come back."

"Good-night, Marion. Some one is at the cottage door."

"It is probably Mr. McCloud and Dickie. I will let them in."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Wickwire.

McCloud and Dickie met them at the porch door. Marion, unnerved, went directly to her room. Whispering Smith stopped to speak to Dickie and McCloud interposed. "Bob Scott telephoned the office just now he had a man from Oroville who wanted to see you right away, Gordon," said he. "I told him to send him over here. It is Wickwire."

"Wickwire," repeated Whispering Smith. "Wickwire has no business here that I know of; no doubt it is something I ought to know of. And, by the way, you ought to see this man," he said, turning again to Dickie. "If McCloud tells the story right, Wickwire is a sort of protégé of yours. Miss Dickie, though neither of you seems to have known it. He is the tramp cowboy who was smashed up in the wreck at Smoky creek. He is not a bad man, but whisky, you know, beats some decent men." A footstep fell on the porch. "There he comes now, I reckon. Shall I let him in a minute?"

"Oh, I should like to see him! He has been at the ranch at different times, you know."

Smith opened the door and stepping out on the porch talked with the newcomer. In a moment he brought him in. Dickie had seated herself on the sofa, McCloud stood in the doorway of the dining room, and Whispering Smith laid one arm on the table as he sat down beside it with his face above the dark shade of the lamp. Before him stood Wickwire. The half-light threw him up tall and dark, but it showed the heavy shock of black hair falling over his forehead, and the broad, thin face of a mountain man.

"He has just been telling me that Seagrue is loose," Whispering Smith explained, pleasantly. "Who turned the trick, Wickwire?"

"Sheriff Coon and a deputy jaller started with Seagrue for Medicine Bend this morning. Coming through Horse Eye canyon, Murray Sinclair and Barney Rebstock got a clean drop on them, took Seagrue, and they all rode off together. They didn't make any bones about it, either. Their gang has got lots of friends over there, you know. They rode into Atlantic City and stayed over an hour. Coon tracked them there and got up a posse of six

A GREAT BLAZE

Of Conviction Sweeping Over
Rushville.

The more people know of the new remedy, Root Juice, the more convinced are they of the wonderful merits of the discovery. Scores of people have bought it at Wolcott's drug store, and after using it a short while they are so loud in praise of it that their neighbors are going to the store in such crowds for the medicine it is hard to keep it in stock. Testimonials are being piled upon testimonials from every direction and many are buying the juice because it is doing so much good for some neighbor or relative. Root Juice has certainly created a great sensation over in Ft. Wayne, Ind. Mr. John Spratt said: "I have suffered a long time with a very painful kidney and bladder trouble, had to get up every fifteen or twenty minutes during the night. I would sometimes so suffer with my back and kidneys that I would have to walk the floor for hours at a time. I began taking Root Juice when it was first mentioned here, and after taking it a short time I wish to say for the benefit of my friends and others who suffer as I did, that I am now free from all pain and rest well at night. I am rapidly regaining strength and am much improved in every way." Mr. Oscar Green, of the same point, R. R. No. 3, said: "Before taking Root Juice I had very bad stomach trouble of long standing. After eating a meal I felt like I had knots or rocks in the pit of my stomach. I bloated very much and had a burning in my stomach that pained me very much and caused me to be very nervous, but the first dose of Root Juice I took soothed my stomach and caused me to feel better and after taking the great medicine a short while I can eat anything without suffering for it."

"We are told that the people at the drug store are glad to give any information within their power in relation to the remedy. The Juice is now on sale for $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50.

DANGEROUS DANDRUFF

Will Make America a Baldheaded Nation if Not Checked.

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Johnson's Drug Store guarantees it. It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease stickiness. It is the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

A large bottle costs only 50 cents at leading druggists everywhere and in Rushville by Johnson's Drug Store. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

men. The three were standing in front of the bank when the sheriff rode into town. Sinclair and Seagrue got on their horses and started off. Rebstock went back to get another drink. When he came out of the saloon he gave the posse a gun-fight all by himself, and wounded two men and made his getaway."

Whispering Smith shook his head, and his hand fell on the table with a tired laugh. "Barney Rebstock," he murmured, "of all men! Coward, skater, filler-in! Barney Rebstock—stale-beer man, sneak, banyard thief! Hit two men!" He turned to McCloud. "What kind of a wizard is Murray Sinclair? What sort of red-blood toxin does he throw into his gang to draw out a spirit like that? Murray Sinclair belongs to the race of empire-builders. By heavens, it is pitiful a man like that should be out of a job! England, McCloud, needs him. And here he is holding up trains on the mountain division!"

"They are all up at Oroville with the Williams Cache gang, celebrating," continued Wickwire.

Whispering Smith looked at the cowboy. "Wickwire, you made a good ride and I thank you. You are all right. This is the young lady and this is the man who had you sent to the hospital from Smoky creek," he added, rising. "You can thank them for picking you up. When you leave here tell Bob Scott to meet me at the Wickup with the horses at 11 o'clock, will you?" He turned to Dickie in a gentle aside. "I am riding north to-night—I wish you were going part way."

Dickie looked at him intently. "You are worried over something," she murmured; "I can see it in your face." "Nothing more than usual. I thrive, you know, on trouble—and I'm sorry to say good-night so early, but I have a long ride ahead." He stepped quietly past McCloud and out of the door.

Wickwire was thanking Dickie when unwillingly she let Whispering Smith's hand slip out of her own. "I shore wouldn't have been here to-night if you two hadn't picked me up," laughed Wickwire, speaking softly to Dickie when she turned to him. "I've known my friends a long time, but I reckon they all didn't know me."

"I've known you longer than you think," returned Dickie with a smile. "I've seen you at the ranchhouse. But now that we really do know each other, please remember you are always sure of a home at the ranch—whenever you want one, Mr. Wickwire, and just as long as you want one. We never forget our friends on the Crawling Stone."

"If I may make so bold, I thank you kindly. And if you all will let me run away now, I want to catch Mr. Whispering Smith for just one minute."

Wickwire overtook Smith in Fort street. "Talk quick, Wickwire," he said; "I'm in a hurry. What do you want?"

"Partner, I've always played fair with you."

"So far as I know, Wickwire, yes. Why?"

"There's nobody to watch any more—they're all to chase, I reckon, now. The open is my kind of a fight, anyway. I want to ride out this man-hunt with you."

"How is your arm?"

"My arm is all right, and there ought to be a place for me in the chase now that Ed Banks is out of it. I want to cut loose up on the range, anyhow; if I'm a man I want to know it, and if I ain't I want to know it. I want to ride with you after Seagrue and Sinclair and Barney Rebstock."

Whispering Smith spoke coldly: "You mean, Wickwire, you want to get killed."

"Why, partner, if it's coming to me, I don't mind—yes."

"What's the use, Wickwire?"

"If I'm a man I want to know it; if I ain't, it's time my friends knowed it. Anyhow, I'm man enough to work out with some of that gang. Most of them have put it over me one time or another; Sinclair pasted me like a black-

THE "HALF MOON" IS NOW IN COMMISSION

Copy of Hudson's Famous Craft
Ready for Doin's.

New York, Sept. 23.—The American ships will now have to divide the premier naval honors of the Hudson-Fulton celebration with the British cruiser squadron which arrived here today. Powerful as are some of the American craft, not one of them is the equal of the all-big-gun cruiser-battleship Inflexible, Admiral Sir Edward Seymour's flagship. Although armed with eight 12-inch guns, the Inflexible has a speed record to equal that of the Mauretania or the Lusitania. With a big-gun battery approximately twice as powerful as those of any two of the American battleships, she possesses a set of turbine engines which make her the speediest large war vessel in the world.

There was an impressive Hudson-Fulton ceremony at the Brooklyn navy yard, when the Half Moon, the copy of Hudson's famous craft, which is to play one of the stellar roles in the celebration, was formally placed in commission. Bands played the national airs of Holland, the Dutch colors waved and The Netherlands commissioners hoisted their colors above the quaint little craft. Since its arrival from Holland the boat has been in the hands of sailmakers and riggers, being furnished for its triumphal appearance.

We will give away absolutely FREE on New Years Day, 1910, a fine KURTZMAN Upright Piano to the Church Society, Fraternal Organization, Club or Individual, securing the greatest total value in coupons issued by the above named merchants, prior to Dec. 25, 1909. This Piano is recognized as one of the finest instruments made, having in its construction the very best of material and workmanship. More than 5000 KURTZMANN Pianos are now in use in Indiana and for over sixty years its popularity has gradually increased until today the "Old Reliable" KURTZMANN is the most talked of piano in the State. The one to be given away is richly designed in fancy mahogany, and has compartment bench to match.

The sole purpose of this progressive enterprise is to stimulate trade, promote a spirit of co-operation, and to encourage the people of Rush County to buy of home merchants.

Coupons will be issued by the above named firms to every customer for the amount of goods bought. The sum total of these coupons issued by the merchants, will determine the person or organization to which the Piano will be awarded. All coupons must be deposited with T. W. Lytle, Sec'y., or any member of the association, on or before Dec. 28, 1909, who in turn, will submit them to a committee of three Rushville Bankers, who will award the Piano to the person or organization sending in coupons representing the greatest amount of purchases.

The above piano was furnished by S. E. Secoy, local representative for the Kurtzmann Piano In Case of a Tie of Contestants Each Will Receive a Piano

COOK SUBMITS TO INTERVIEW

Forty Reporters Tackle Explorer At One Time.

PERFECTLY FRANK WITH THEM

The Severest Ordeal Through Which Discoverer of the North Pole Has Passed Since His Return Indicates, at Least, That He is Not Afraid to Meet the Public—All Controversial Subjects in Connection With His Rival He Avoided Entirely, Saying They Could Wait.

New York, Sept. 23.—Last evening at the Waldorf-Astoria Dr. Frederick A. Cook submitted cheerfully to one of the severest cross-examinations since he announced his discovery of the north pole. The ordeal of the interview, which was conducted by forty newspaper representatives, including several from foreign newspapers, proved at least that he was not afraid to meet the public. Incidentally the city of New York officially recognized his achievement yesterday when the board of aldermen passed a resolution commemorating his discovery and providing for a public welcome at the city hall. The date of the reception will be announced later.

The material points of Dr. Cook's answers did not differ in a great degree from his original recital. Some slight details were cleared up, however, which throw light on the way in which the polar dash was effected. As the questions asked were put by laymen, they did not go deeply into the scientific aspect of the expedition, but Dr. Cook was ready to answer anything pertinent to the issue.

The most interesting phase of the interview was reached when Dr. Cook was asked if he would object to showing his diary. He immediately consented and, after retiring to his room, returned with a small octavo notebook, which he showed freely to all. It was a thin book containing 173 pages, each of which was filled with fifty or sixty lines of pencilled writing in the most minute characters. The book, he said, contained considerably more than 100,000 words, while he has besides other books embracing his observations and other data. He did not show them, however.

As question after question was asked, whether it was of a trivial nature or of a more serious trend, Dr. Cook answered in a low voice without hesitancy, as though in full possession of all his facts. Not once did he refuse to reply, except when the name of Commander Peary was broached. Even then he said that he had always and did now consider Peary as his friend, but controversial subjects in connection with his rival he avoided entirely, saying that they could wait. Throughout the interview he exhibited the utmost patience.

When requested to say what had occurred at his meeting with Harry Whitney, the New Haven sportsman, he said he preferred to let Whitney tell his own story, as Whitney was quite unbiased. His reasons in imposing secrecy on Whitney, on Pritchard, Commander Peary's cabin boy, and the Eskimos were prompted by his desire to be the first to tell the world of his discovery. He had done the work, he said, and was entitled to relate how it had been carried out.

PEARY NEARING HOME

The Explorer Now on His Way to Eagle Island.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 23.—Commander Robert E. Peary had no further statements to make regarding the polar controversy, and while traveling westward to his home in Eagle Bay from Sydney, spent the time going over his correspondence. The explorer, with his family, left Sydney early yesterday and reached Truro last night. Later the Peary party departed for Portland, which they will reach this evening. Commander Peary expects to spend a few days at his home at Eagle Island, making up his reports and preparing a statement on the question, "Has Cook been at the pole?" He said he did not think it would be long before the statement was made public.

WELL, DID YOU EVER?

Britons Now Trying to Tear Laurels From Americans' Brows.

London, Sept. 23.—An afternoon paper here has advanced the theory that the reason Cook and Peary announced their claims to the north pole discovery almost simultaneously was that they heard of the discovery of the pole by a British expedition and rushed back to civilization to forestall the Britishers. The name of the English expedition has not yet been disclosed by the paper. The rumor is generally discredited, but the editors of the paper insist that they are on the right track and that the story may be expected to break momentarily.

MASSACRE STORY DENIED BY RUSSIA

But Berlin Press Insists It Is All Too True.

Berlin, Sept. 23.—The German press has not since the Kishinev massacre of 1903 been so aroused over an anti-Jewish outrage as today over the reports of the attack on the Jewish quarters of Kieff and its suburb of Solomka, and the desperate attempt of the Russian authorities to suppress all news of the outrage.

The official news agency of Russia and the Russian newspapers, under orders from the government, are denying the story as sent to Berlin. The story, however, was absolutely reliable and today's accounts from special correspondents bear out the account even to the details.

Inquiries made of Russian sources have met with denials and it has remained for the true story to filter out through the special correspondents. Every paper in Berlin prints long stories of the three days' rioting in Kieff, which began with the Jewish new year on Thursday.

Kieff Sensation Denied. St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—The report that anti-Jewish riots have occurred at Kieff is officially denied at the chancellery of Premier Stolypin. The official news agency and newspapers here have no word of rioting. The official news bureau, in response to a direct query, received from its correspondent in Kieff a message reading: "No rioting has occurred here."

London Can't Confirm It. London, Sept. 23.—Leading Jews here, although anxious, are inclined to discredit the reported pogrom at Kieff, European Russia, all efforts to get confirmation of the rumors having thus far failed.

GOOD CROWD OUT FOR CLUB SHOOT

Contests in Weekly Event at the Gun and Country Club Were Interesting.

TROPHIES ARE NOT YET WON

Dr. McClanahan, Victor in Club Prize and Earl Beaver in the Ballistile.

With good weather conditions and one of the best crowds which ever attended, the weekly handicap shoot was held at the Gun and Country club grounds yesterday afternoon. The interest grows stronger each week as a new entrant for the prize enters the field and becomes a contestant for the prizes.

The club trophy was won yesterday by Dr. F. R. McClanahan, he breaking eighteen out of a possible twenty-five and tying with Brooks, who broke twenty-four. In shooting off the tie Dr. McClanahan made seven out of a possible ten pigeons and Brooks broke eight, the contest going to McClanahan by reason of his handicap.

This made a new contestant for the club trophy, as Earl Beaver has won it twice before. It will be necessary for him to win it again or some one else three times before the event is called off and the trophy awarded.

The Ballistile trophy which has been contested for several weeks went to Earl Beaver yesterday. He brought down twenty-three out of a possible twenty-five pigeons and tied with Charley Brooks who got twenty-four. In shooting of the tie Beaver broke six out of a possible ten, while Brooks got seven and the prize went to Beaver because of his handicap.

The Ballistile event has been on the boards for six consecutive weeks and still no one has won. Two men, however, are in the running as Beaver has won it twice as has also Williams. Dr. E. F. VanOsdol and Charley Brooks have each won it once.

The score in the shoot follows:

TAKES FIRST RIDE ON ELECTRIC CAR

Hancock County Farmer Makes Good Start and Comes to Rushville on Initial Trip.

BUT HE JUST COULDN'T SPIT

Robert J. Wilson, who owns a sixty-four-acre farm in Vernon township, and has lived all his life in the country, and is now fifty-one years old, was never on a street car or steam car in his life until September 9th, when he went to Rushville to attend the Ward trial, says the Greenfield Reporter.

Mr. Wilson went on the electric car and says it went so fast he could hardly spit for the poles. The next day he left over the steam road for Jennings county, and was so well pleased with the trip, that he says the steamboat next.
